In Touch with TUSD

Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it's the only thing that ever has. - Margaret Mead

Throughout our school district, I am constantly reminded that most of our successes are a result of dedicated people working together to make things better. Collaboration among passionate and capable individuals creates a synergy that leads to results that are far beyond our ability to achieve individually. Some of this work occurs in formalized committees, task forces, and work teams, but it can also be the result of informal cooperation between colleagues, parents and community members.

In Tustin Unified, collaboration has become the default method for getting things done. Among the most obvious examples are the high-performing grade-level teams, Professional Learning Communities, departments and course-alike teams in our schools that work together to increase student achievement through better lessons, engaging strategies and the integration of technology. Instruction in TUSD has never been better and I appreciate everyone who works with colleagues to spread the best practices that we have seen work throughout the District.

Perhaps less obvious, but incredibly important are the groups of staff who work behind the scenes. For example, I recently had an opportunity to spend a few minutes with our New Teacher Induction Committee - veteran TUSD teachers who plan the formal induction of new teachers into TUSD and the profession. Their dedication and passion for ensuring that new teachers have powerful and practical experiences are inspiring. As a result of their work, new teachers gain valuable expertise and confidence in the process of collaboration and reflection. Teachers who complete the TUSD Induction process earn their clear credential - a process that many of us had to complete at the university. Thanks to the Induction team for their great work!

The teams of staff who bargain on behalf of the District, such as the Tustin Educators Association (TEA), Classified School Employees Association (CSEA) and Classified Supervisory Management Association (CSMA), are also outstanding examples of the power of collaboration. Through the Interest-Based approach, these teams of teachers, classified staff and administrators address issues that are important to everyone in the District. They operate on the belief that "none of us are as smart as all of us." As a result, issues are addressed in a productive, respectful and positive manner. I appreciate their work.

Collaboration has also changed the lives of individual students. At the February school board meeting, a parent shared a very emotional story of his daughter's experience at Beckman High School. Kelsey started high school in honors courses and playing on the school soccer team. Unfortunately, she developed Lafora disease which resulted in her rapid physical and cognitive decline. One of Kelsey's greatest desires was to continue attending Beckman High the school she loved. Most students who have this rare disease are unable to continue attending school; however, Kelsey's special education teacher, counselor, psychologist, administrators and others worked together to ensure that Kelsey could continue at Beckman. Kelsey passed away two months before her graduation date, but the care and compassion of the Beckman team changed how Kelsey experienced the last few years of her life. Kelsey's incredibly moving story touched everyone in attendance, and as shared by her father, touched the lives of their family forever.

Collaboration matters. It's not an add-on – it is a core practice. It's not done just to make people feel good, it's serious work in pursuit of our most important goals the education and preparation of our students to have productive lives and lead our community and the world. Thanks to all of you who work together to make it happen!

By Mark Eliot

Director of Communications and Public Information

Courtney Smith, kindergarten teacher at Tustin Memorial Academy, and Zachariah Samarin, seventh grade Core/entrepreneurship/leadership teacher at A.G. Currie Middle School, have been selected as the 2016 Teachers of the Year by the Tustin Unified School District. They will represent the District in the 2016-17 Orange County Teachers of the Year program.

The Orange County Department of Education will interview the selected candidates and announce winners in May. The county finalists will then go on to the California and National Teacher of the Year programs.

Tustin Unified's annual awards program recognizes outstanding teachers who have displayed extraordinary teaching, creativity and excellence at their school and community.

Smith and Samarin were chosen from a field of 28 candidates. Additionally, Smith was named Elementary (grades K-5) Teacher of the Year and Samarin was selected as Secondary (grades 6-12) Teacher of the Year.

"It was an incredible surprise to see so many District representatives and family members come into my classroom the morning of the Teacher of the Year announcement," Smith said. "The icing on the cake was when many of my colleagues burst into the room cheering and offering their congratulations. The news was so much sweeter because I was surrounded by people who believe in me and encourage me to be the best teacher possible."

TMA Principal Wendy Hudson and Superintendent Dr. Gregory Franklin congratulate TUSD Elementary Teacher of the Year Courtney Smith, center.

Smith has taught in education for 18 years – all at Tustin Memorial Academy (TMA). She has taught kindergarten and first grade, and fundamental and Gifted and Talented Education (GATE) classes. During her time at TMA, the school has been named a National Blue Ribbon School in 2007 and California Distinguished School twice in 2014 and 2006. Tustin Memorial has also been nominated as a 2016 Exemplary High Performing School in the National Blue Ribbon Schools Program.

"My greatest accomplishment as a teacher is that I'm able to make a difference in the lives of my students," Smith said. "My goal is to instill in my students a love for learning, to challenge them to grow academically, and to develop their skills and talents in order to be the best they can be."

Smith has received numerous grants from the Cotsen Art of Teaching Foundation, Tustin Public Schools Foundation and Tustin-Santa Ana Rotary Club Good Idea Awards program. She is a Cotsen and Technology fellow, participates in Family Reading Night and Dinosaur Dash, and organizes Teacher Share Fairs as well as book study groups.

"Courtney is exceptionally caring and optimistic," Tustin Memorial Principal Wendy Hudson said. "She wears a smile on her face every single day and excels at bringing students and staff together to learn or play."

Outside of school, Smith is actively involved in community charity work. She sponsors children through humanitarian aid organizations, adopts families and provides them with meals during the holiday season, serves as a collection volunteer for the Second Harvest Food Bank and creates care packages containing personal hygiene items and supplies for the homeless. She is also involved in theater productions and stages an elaborate neighborhood play each summer involving 20 or more children, which she nicknames "The Community Garage Theater."

"I'm very honored and humbled to receive the District's Teacher of the Year award and excited to promote Currie and my students," said Samarin, who has been a teacher for 16 years – 10 in the Tustin school district. "It is pleasure watching them shine and take initiative in higher levels of learning. This award is for them and I am so thrilled that they are making me a better teacher every day."

At Currie, Samarin serves as the Team Leader for seventh grade Core and advisor for the Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports (PBIS) program, oversees the ASB class and encourages his students to participate in debates and Socratic seminars. He also conducts a mentor program, coaches the school's volleyball team and organizes student trips to Washington, D.C.

"Zachariah is a passionate teacher who cares deeply for his students," Currie Principal Erick Fineberg said. "He brings his life experiences to the classroom and uses them as motivation and inspiration for his students."

Samarin developed an entrepreneurship class at the middle school level for the first time in the history of the District. With his background as a marketing major in college, Samarin brought the principles and innovation of entrepreneurship to Currie where students are engaged in analyzing data and starting a business. Most recently, his entrepreneur class presented business plans for vacant space in Tustin to City Council members and the city's Economic Development Department.

Under Samarin's leadership, Currie students have raised over $4,000 for various local charities, collected thousands of pounds of food and clothing, volunteered at the Orange County Rescue Mission, provided books and supplies to Children's Hospital of Orange County and cleaned the streets of Tustin on a monthly basis.

Currie Principal Erick Fineberg and Superintendent Dr. Gregory Franklin commend TUSD Secondary Teacher of the Year Zachariah Samarin, center.

"My teaching philosophy is simple - love the kids and have a strong work ethic," Samarin said. "Students need to see and feel that they are loved and cared for while being taught that hard work will pay off for them in the future."

I like to think School News is an ongoing celebration of every teacher in every classroom. The fact that you are reading this publication is a testament to a teacher.

Dr. Franklin's message on page 3 highlights the importance of collaboration and under his leadership the results are measurable.

The District Services on pages 25 and 26 bring you up to date on technology in the classroom, nutrition, construction gearing up for summer and the new Spanish Dual Language Immersion program for next year. The District is always planning ahead for the benefit of the students.

I'd like to take this opportunity to say Happy Mother's Day to all Moms. My dear mother passed away in July at the age of 94. I think about her everyday and am grateful for her wisdom and loving guidance. The little chicken with the umbrella above was one of her doodles that I loved as a child. When I began publishing School News, I named the chicken Netragrednik —Kindergarten spelled backwards.

The high school space race is on! Beckman High School will join with the four other Irvine high schools to work on becoming the first high school group to successfully launch a CubeSAT into orbit.

The five high schools are joining forces with industry partners and experts to assemble, test, and launch a CubeSat (nano-satellite) into low Earth orbit. Each high school team has a focus area and Beckman has been assigned avionics.

A CubeSat is a type of miniaturized satellite intended for space research that performs a number of scientific research functions that will be conducted by our students. Avionics are the electronic systems of the satellite including the writing of software that control the functions.

We are excited about our participation in this innovative program and look forward to a launch in early 2017.

All Teaching, All Learning

Our Teacher of the Year for 2016 is Annette Cuccarese. She teaches transitional kindergarten, and her work embodies one of our profession's most profound truths: In the best classrooms, it's sometimes difficult to determine who is teaching and who is learning! The teacher's skill and love allow the classroom to become a community where all members present, engaged and alive are both teaching and learning.

Teacher Annette Cuccarese is always on the go like the school's mascot - Heideman Roadrunner.

"Even at the age of five these kids are big thinkers," Ms. Cuccarese said. "There is a time and a place for them to listen to instruction, yet there is also a time for us to step back and listen to them. They have taught me to take the time to listen. When I do. they blow me away with their understanding of the world. And I am humbled by their intelligence. They make me a better person."

A Force in the Classroom

Congratulations go to Tami Bailey, who was recently nominated by her Hewes peers as our Teacher of the Year!

As both a math and Advancement Via Individual Determination teacher (AVID), Mrs. Bailey fully embodies an undying passion to reach each and every one of her students. Whether dynamically leading students to engage in collaborative real-world math problems – or setting goals and supporting her AVID students to help them reach new heights – her passion is worn on her sleeves. And the students sense it.

As she is literally available for additional support all day, from early in the morning until 4:30 p.m. after school, her students are able to overcome many of their academic obstacles. Not only that, but she also co-leads our school's Positive Behavioral Intervention and Supports program (PBIS), and is an active participant in the Math Department's regular collaboration and planning.

We are proud of Mrs. Bailey as an excellent representation of Hewes teachers, and as a "Jedi Mathster."

100th Day of School

On February 18, Ladera Elementary School students celebrated the 100th tday of school. The celebration began with students entering under banners proclaiming, "You Are 100 Days Smarter Today!" Music was played throughout the day over a public-address system, giving students 100-second dance breaks. Throughout the week, library media technician Christina Rigney read aloud 100th Day Worries, and Ladera set a Positive Behavioral Intervention and Supports (PBIS) goal of capturing a minimum of 100 acts of kindness.

In each classroom, teachers conducted activities appropriate for their grade levels. In Erin Neuer's class, students challenged themselves using their Cognitively Guided Instruction (CGI) inquiry skills, with a goal of finding 100 each of 30 different items. The students had to get creative. When they were only able to find 50 pairs of scissors, they counted finger holes (two per pair) and came up with 100! One student proudly stated, "That's 3.000 things!"

Teacher Erin Neuer's first grade students proudly share their math collection.

delivery of each word. Her systems set the students up for success by using every learning minute, right down to the constantly changing names for table groups that teach new vocabulary.

Jennifer's teaching craft is expertly skilled, yet she masterfully synthesizes the quality training she participates in as a Cotsen fellow, and then she builds on what is already working. Jennifer collects data on her students daily and uses it to thread learning throughout the day.

She does this so well that when asked to share her know-how to the entire staff, she left everyone in awe and wanting to adopt her systems!

We are so excited to have Jennifer Trinh represent the excellent teaching at Lambert as our 2016 Teacher of the Year.

20 Percent Time, 100 Percent Engagement

Tustin Connect students have recently embarked on 20 percent projects, which means that they are dedicating 20 percent of their learning time to accomplish a meaningful self-driven project. The 20 percent projects empower students to go above and beyond typical learning standards while providing a conduit for their passions and interests.

Some of the student projects include producing an action film, creating step-by-step computer-coding tutorials, organizing park clean-ups, starting a business, organizing a toy drive, creating an original board game, and starting a school newspaper. Emily McCourtney, the lead elementary teacher, works closely with each student and provides structure, deadlines, and feedback to ensure that every student has a successful and meaningful learning experience. Students also create an interactive website for their project to document their learning experience.

Tustin Connect students Delaney Manna, Bethany Ng, Liam Raney and Devin Petrus share ideas and discuss their 20% projects with each other.

The 20 percent projects will culminate with a presentation showcase in which students will proudly display and share what they have accomplished.

Dual Language Immersion Program

The Tustin Unified School District is excited to be offering a new Spanish Dual Language Immersion Program at Marjorie Veeh Elementary School next year. These classes will be open in the fall for students in the transitional kindergarten, kindergarten, and first grades.

Each student will learn to read, write, and communicate effectively in both Spanish and English. Students will develop the bilingual skills and cross-cultural competencies they need to be successful in a multicultural society and global economy.

The program will offer our English-speaking and Spanish-speaking students an exciting, enriching, and challenging educational opportunity. Dual Language Immersion Programs have been used successfully in California for more than 25 years. Research shows an impressive development of both second-language fluency and academic achievement.

The program goals include students achieving success in all academic subjects according to district and state guidelines. They will develop fluency in communication, and literacy in both Spanish and English, and without compromising either language. Furthermore, they will also cultivate understanding and appreciation of other cultures, gain self-esteem, and strengthen positive attitudes towards their fellow students, families, and the larger Tustin community.

Applications are now being accepted for students interested in enrolling in the program. Parents can find the application on the TUSD homepage, at www.tustin.k12. ca.us. For more information, call (714) 730-7301, ext. 318.

These keynotes set the tone for innovation, sharing among districts, and the goal of future-ready schools for all students. Other sessions during the conference were given by teachers, digital-learning coaches, principals, district staff and members of the executive cabinet.

The highlight of the Institute was the site tours to Barbara Benson Elementary School, C.E. Utt Middle School and Beckman High School. Everyday Angel: New Beginnings

This great emotion filled book is about two girls named Aria (a guardian angel) and Gabby Torres (whose brother is sick). Gabby is so worried about school, because she doesn't want anyone to discover her secret life. Then, Aria shows up! Aria knows exactly how to help make Gabby feel better. Gabby is a normal girl except for the fact she keeps half her life a secret—even from her mom! This book talks about why sometimes it's good to reveal your secrets. It's an example of how difficult things in your life don't have to be negative. Gabby is so worried about her brother that she forgets who she is. The story is about problems and solutions that came for Gabby in seventh grade. I can't wait to read the second book! I rate this book 5 apples.

Nothing is Impossible!

Lucy Davis

The Lightning Queen Author: Laura Resau Mateo spends his summers at the Hill of Dust, a small, rural town in Mexico. His grandfather tells him tales of the old town. When Mateo is transported into a story of his grandfather's childhood, he learns about Esma, the Queen of Lightning. Esma is a Romani girl who, with her tribe, came to the Hill of Dust and became lifelong friends with Mateo's grandfather.

The two friends go through a lot together, and when something seems it cannot be done, Esma always says, "Nothing is impossible, my friend for life."

This book gets four bookworms out of five because it shows the readers the power of hope, and it is a great example of the importance of telling family history. I recommend the story for grades 4 and up. I hope this book inspires you to ask about your own family's history.

Lucy Davis is a 4th grade student. Besides reading, she enjoys riding her bike, theatre, and playing guitar. Lucy will rate the books 1 to 5 bookworms with 5 being the best.

Smiles Ahead

You may have heard the term indie music and not thought about the meaning because what's played on indie stations sounds so good. Accomplished indie musicians are in fact artists who opt to transport their performances to eager ears through small labels and the Internet instead of recording with big, largely commercial corporations.

This gives these artists more room for creativity, selfexpression and their own "heart." If you've heard bands like Wilco and Radiohead, you'll agree that it all works really well.

And if you and the children around you also know the names Okee Dokee Brothers, Rissi Palmer, the Pop-Ups and the 10 other artists and bands on this new multigenre collection, you'll also agree that a flourishing, delightful bunch of indie artists exists for the very young. Smiles Ahead is a project of Mighty Mo Productions, a small label founded by award-winning children's entertainer Jim "Mr. Stinky Feet" Cosgrove, who appears in this collection as a producer only. This happy, tuneful CD includes songs that all children will enjoy and that could also be on your own hit parade. Secret Agent 23 Skidoo, aka King of Kid Hop, raps about self-confidence in the hippy-hoppy "You're It." Grandparents and sixties-music aficionados will recall the English Invasion in The Verve Pipes' "Get Happy." Spring and bluegrass go together, and the Okee Dokee Brothers pair them well on "Walking with Spring." And Brady Rhymer and the Little Band That Could have the best CD opener ever—the catchy "Jump Up."

There are definitely smiles ahead for everyone here! Kate Karp is an editor for School News Roll Call and a freelance writer and editor.

A Single Act of Kindness

It's been said that a single act of kindness can grow roots in all directions. If that's true, what would happen if we pledged to commit a million acts of kindness? Or even a billion?

We intend to find out. Beginning in May, the Orange County Department of Education will launch a new initiative asking the citizens of Orange County to pursue the goal of performing 1 billion acts of kindness throughout the county.

This is admittedly an ambitious undertaking, perhaps even audacious in its scope. But the current climate of social fragmentation and political polarization calls for something big, and between our local school districts and community partners, I believe we have all the pieces in place to make it happen.

What constitutes an act of kindness? Well, that's somewhat subjective. It could be as simple as picking up a discarded cup along the sidewalk or allowing a car to merge in front of you on a busy interchange. Or it could be more involved, like visiting a home for senior citizens, joining a beach clean-up or volunteering at a local animal shelter. No matter the size, it's about doing something kind with no expectations of reciprocity.

In 2013, the Anaheim Elementary School District joined a citywide effort to carry out a "Million Acts of Kindness," and the results were remarkable. The students of Anaheim were inspired by the challenge, and they continued to embrace the premise even after their goal was met.

By scaling up to include a county of more than 3 million residents, we have the potential to build a positive social and cultural infrastructure by connecting our shared values and enhancing our relationships with one another. And there are critical lessons for our students as well. Beyond the emphasis on the "the four Cs" of communication, collaboration, critical thinking and creativity, we have an extraordinary opportunity to promote the fifth C -- character.

Starting May 5, you will be invited to share each act of kindness on your computer or smartphone at OCkindness. org. I would also encourage you to post your good deeds on social media, using a hashtag to be announced soon. Each entry will be counted toward our total.

Once again, the "how" is entirely up to you. But the benefits will extend to all of us.

10 STUDY TIPS

To be more productive in 2016

Your children's teachers, as a part of a 1050 member strong professional union, appreciate the ongoing support of the Tustin Unified School District education community. We all play an important part in our students' success!

- 1. Good lighting can increase your productivity. An overhead light might not be enough-consider a desk or floor lamp with direct light.
- Get enough sleep, especially the night before your exam. Have regular short breaks every 50-90 minutes to help you focus better.
- 3. Start studying early and plan your study time in advance. Use a calendar and write down what you're planning to do each day.
- Use a color code to break down your topics. Use markers and post-it notes to group relevant information together. It will help you memorize everything
- 5. Eat healthy food that fuels your brain. Food like apples, walnuts, and blueberries can improve your ability to focus, retain information and remain mentally alert.

- Avoid any distraction. Turn off your phone and the television, and check your during the break time.
- 7. Use mind maps to visualize your topics better, improve your memory and prioritize information.
- 8. During high intensity study periods, it is recommended you take breaks to exercise. It will make you feel more energized and refreshed.
- 9. Some people find that listening to music while studying helps them be more productive. If that is your case, keep the volume low and play songs that you don't find yourself singing along to!
- 10. Treat yourself! After taking an exam, meet a friend for coffee, go to the movies, or just take a well deserved break before starting to study for your next assignment.

A Case of the Grumpies!

Q. Our seven year old son has a case of the grumpies. We are really frustrated with his attitude in the morning before school. He barks at all of us, he stomps around doing all of his morning tasks and walks out the door with a frown. We are at our wits end with this! Is there anything we can do?! —Loise P.

A. Not only are there things you can do, but there are things you must do. Tolerating negative behavior, perpetuates it and makes it more difficult to overcome in the long run. If you let this go, your son will cement this habit and very likely carry this behavior into the future. Consider the following factors in determining causes and roots of this behavior::

Sleeping /Eating Habits: First of all, make sure your son is getting enough restful sleep and that his diet is conducive to this. Avoid sugar or even mildly caffeinated foods or drinks right before bed. Also, make sure his bedtime is appropriate.

Environment: What is your morning environment like? Does your son wake up to a loud clanging alarm? Are the lights a bright, intrusive fluorescent? Are people yelling or is a TV blaring? Create a soft, easy environment for the first waking minutes. No one likes being jolted out of bed. Keep the lights dimmed, keep the house warm, and provide enough time to ease into the morning routine.

Circumstances: Is there negativity at school that you should be addressing? Is there a chance the attitude relates to the day he is dreadfully anticipates? Be familiar with his feelings about going to school and what occurs there.

What are You Tolerating? As attentive as you need to be, it is almost equally important that you do not tolerate bad behavior. It is important for a child to understand self control in this manner. Set the rule: "You can talk about how you feel, but you are not allowed to bring everyone down, because you are crabby." Explain that bringing a "bad attitude" into the room is pollution of the environment and that you will not tolerate that any more than you would tolerate a person throwing garbage all over your floor!

Role Model: Do you ever claim, "I am not a morning person" and tolerate your own crabbiness? Do you allow yourself a bad attitude even if it is only until that first cup of coffee? If so, you are setting a strong negative example that is likely being followed!

Finally, please consider one of my favorite mood enhancers of all time: Music! Invest in an ipod and some speakers. Create an upbeat morning playlist that either eases him into his day or jazzes up the atmosphere. It is amazing what putting a little "swing in your step" can do for your mood. It is a wonderful way to start the day.

Remember When?

Charlene Ashendorf

Lovalty

If you are like me, you have a wallet or drawer filled with plastic. No, I don't mean credit cards. I am referring to those cards for everything from grocery and drug stores, to movie theaters and specialty shops. I use them, but I find them annoying. They take up space on my key chain and often hold up the check-out lines as I fumble around in search of the correct card. Those cards are linked to my phone, my email and identification numbers, all of which I loose from time to time; and all for the love of loyalty points.

Recently my elderly mother and I were reminiscing about the good old days. She asked, "Do you remember green stamps?" You know the ones mother is referring to. The bright green S & H stamps the size of postage that were prominently marked with bold red italic S & H. each assigned a number value? Of course, I did remember...

There was a "telephone" desk in our kitchen where a shoebox that was wrapped in Christmas paper held loose stamps and Quick Saver Books. Like millions of middleclass Americans in the 1950's and 1960's, saving Sperry & Hutchinson stamps was more than a pass time, it was a family activity.

Mother would specifically shop at stores wherever earning stamps for purchases was possible; primarily grocery stores like Kroger. But dad would be rewarded with green stamps at the Sinclair gas station as well. The ritual began with bringing home the stamps. My job was to lick the stamps. One by one my tongue turned green (from licking to sticking) filling the pages in the special books. White pages would soon turn green, which was as good as gold for us. After my task was completed, the family would gather around the table and pour over the redemption catalogue. We would be rewarded for our shopping loyalty with gifts! From toasters to trips or toys, the possibilities were endless. 1200 stamps and the book was filled. Valued at approximately $3.00 book, each of us had our green stamp wish list. The results were tangible, like my first Eastman Kodak Brownie 1962 Camera!

As the checker at Von's hands me my receipt, she forces a smile, struggles to pronounce my difficult last name and says in a rote manner, "Mrs. Ashendorf, You have saved $2.67 today." I can't help thinking about green stamps and remembering when...

Charlene remembers growing up in Chicago with hot and humid summers, leaves that turned colors in the fall and endless winters. Active in her community and church, she advocates for seniors, affordable housing, literacy and libraries. Her hobbies include reading, writing and visiting art galleries. Charlene resides in Costa Mesa with her husband, Dennis who is a teacher in the Newport Mesa Unified School District. http://about.me/cmash

CHECK IT OUT

Do some research on the camp. Is it reputable? How long have they been in business? Do you know anyone who has attended there? What is the staff to child ratio? Are staff personnel trained in a particular skill or hired simply as bodies to watch kids? These are important "first questions" to answer If you're looking for a launching point for finding a camp, peruse the ones listed in this issue, check your local parks and recreation departments, museums, zoos, and parenting publications. Check out the American Camping Association at www.acacamps.org and the National Camping Association at www.summercamp.org for accreditation and more information on camps.

AFFORDABLE

What's in your budget for a camp? They range from fairly inexpensive to the thousands of dollars. Day camps are usually less expensive, while sleep overs can add a whole different level of financial commitment. Find out if there are "extras" such as an amusement park excursion that could easily add on an extra $40. As parents we want to invest in our children, but not go into debt. Choose a camp you can afford.

ALD Chinese School's Epic Chinese Summer Camp is a lively full day Chinese immersion adventure that combines engaging academics with the wonders of science, sports, discovery, and culture, all in a festive Mandarin immersion environment!

17072 Gillette Avenue • Irvine 949-509-0288 | www.alittledynasty.com

MOTIVE

Are you sending your kids to camp so they can have fun, to get them out of the house, or so they can learn something new, such as horseback riding, archaeology, or sailing? Do your kids want to go to camp because all their friends are going, or to make new friends? Those are all good reasons! Discerning motivation for wanting your children to attend camp and finding out their reasons for wanting to go will aid you in selecting the most appropriate one.

Personality

Know your kids and what type of cam would appeal to them. Think twice about sending your kids to a camp that offers activities so vastly different from their own interests, even if you're hoping to expand their horizons. Our kids should be gently encouraged to try new experiences, but not at the expense of them feeling uncomfortable, or completely out of their element.

NOTE: If you ask your kids first about their choice, they may be disappointed if it's too expensive, if it isn't somewhere you approve of, or if the timing just wouldn't work out. May you be richly rewarded for all your efforts when your children exclaim that camp was the highlight of their summer!

A Bit of History

Music to the Ears

By D.H. Coop

I do not know exactly when music became important to me. It may have been on the ride in the car back from Valley Forge in 1949 with my mother, uncle, aunt and grandparents singing "Home on the Range." Or it may have been the radio shows of the day, such as The Lone Ranger, whose theme was from the William Tell Overture, or The Green Hornet and the theme "Flight of the Bumblebee." It could have been the two blocks of wood with sandpaper on them that I made music with in the first grade.

I do know that music made life enjoyable and that it became markers for events in my life. Elvis takes me back to the mid-fifties, Hank Williams to the lonely mornings in the fields, and Jack Benny to radio and television when families sat listening together to the same shows. Jack Benny would always get a laugh with his poor violin playing when in reality he was an accomplished violinist.

The truth is, music is good for our soul. For many of us, our music studio is in our bathtub or shower. What would humanity be without music and the teachers that pass the knowledge on to others? It is difficult to imagine a world

TUSD Breaks Ground on New Humanities Building at Tustin High

The Tustin Unified School District held a groundbreaking ceremony for the new Humanities Building at Tustin High School on February 19.

The two-story building is approximately 14,000 square feet and features 12 state-of-the-art classrooms with interactive projectors and whiteboards, classroom audio amplification systems, new furniture for students. "Currently, the Humanities Department is spread across the campus and this facility will provide a common location for greater collaboration and project-based learning," Tustin High Principal Christine Matos said.

The project is being funded through the Measure L campus modernization program. It is scheduled to be completed by the end of summer when students and staff return for the new school year.

TUSD Board President Lynn Davis, Tustin High Principal Christine Matos, Tustin High ASB President Angie Nguyen, TUSD Board Member Francine Scinto and Superintendent Gregory Franklin participate in the Tustin High Humanities Building groundbreaking ceremony.

Beckman Student Receives Perfect Score on AP Spanish Exam

Andrea Lopez, a junior at Beckman High School, has received a perfect score on the Advanced Placement (AP) Spanish Language and Culture Exam.

AP Exams are based and reported on a five-point scale, where five is equivalent to a grade A in the corresponding college course. Andrea not only received the top score of five, but was one of 55 students in the world to earn every point possible on the AP Spanish Language and Culture Exam, receiving the maximum score on each portion of the exam.

According to the College Board, approximately 4.5 million AP exams were taken by 2.5 million U.S. public high school students in spring 2015, yet only 322 students earned every point possible on an AP exam – a rare accomplishment.

The TUSD Board of Education recognized Andrea for her hard work and acknowledged AP Spanish teacher Graciela Valdez, who is responsible for engaging students and enabling them to excel in a college-level course.

Superintendent Gregory Franklin, Beckman High AP Spanish teacher Graciela Valdez and TUSD Board President Lynn Davis recognize Beckman junior Andrea Lopez at a school board meeting for receiving a perfect score on her AP Spanish Language and Culture Exam.

Pioneer Redesignated as Schools to Watch-Taking Center Stage School

Pioneer Middle School has been redesignated as a 2016 California Schools to Watch-Taking Center Stage (STW-TCS) School. The official announcement was made in February.

Having been selected as both a California and National STW-TCS school in 2012, Pioneer is required to reapply every three years to maintain its status as a national model middle school.
