Happy New Year!

This is our 9th year publishing the excellence from the Hawthorne School District. Thank you for continuing to include School News among your reading choices.

In this issue you will read about many topics from the importance of daily school attendance to creating a college culture to bullying prevention. I have to say that each time I read an article about bullying or a kindness club I am reminded of being a child and kindness being taught at home. The world is changing at such a rapid rate and educators are tasked with the challenge of preparing students for competing in the 21st Century.

It seems the very least we as parents can do is teach our children to respect others. It may take financial resources to wear the latest fashions or to buy the latest car, but it does not cost anything to be polite. Perhaps you remember asking permission to be excused from the table or saying please and thank you. Unlike fashions, manners never go out of style. My wish in the new year is that adults and students accept the responsibility of kindness and civility toward each other. Remember children model what they see and we must set the example we want them to follow.

Our next issue is March 6.

The BCMS Kindness Club

This school year our new counselor, Erin Hart, started a lunch-time “BCMS Kindness Club.” The Club meets every Wednesday to help create a more positive school climate on our campus.

Fifty to eighty students from all grade levels gather weekly in the GEAR UP College and Career Center to engage in activities that promote a kindness culture. Some of the activities have included creating positive keychain messages to be given to peers, generating weekly kindness quotes for morning announcements, random Acts of Kindness Week activities, meditation, yoga, and campus clean-up.

The Club also supports activities during Red Ribbon and Bullying Prevention Weeks.

Students also create submissions for the Anti-Bullying Art Contest in which seven BCMS students won recent honors.

During one session, students gathered together in a circle and used the “Kindness Ball” to choose a speaker and share a positive remark or compliment about another participant. They discussed how it felt to hear nice things about themselves that weren’t related to physical characteristics.

Our students were positively receptive of the compliments, and beamed with appreciation. This Club has had a huge positive impact on the Bud Carson community.

San Bernardino Forestry Challenge

Six students comprised two teams to represent Hawthorne Math and Science Academy (HMSA) at the 2018 San Bernardino Forestry Challenge, a three-day academic competition on technical forestry skills and current forest management topics.

Students learned how to identify trees, measure tree height and diameter, and use forestry tools. They also met people in the industry. Students collected data to evaluate a fuel reduction project with the primary goal of reducing wildfire severity. At the end of the competition, each team created a forest management plan and presented it to a panel of judges. An HMSA team earned a spot in the California State Forestry Challenge Championship, to be held in April 2019.

“Being able to bring my students to Forestry Challenge and have them work on issues affecting our environment is way better than any lesson I can teach them in the classroom,” said HMSA teacher Meredith Brandon.

A Worthy 'Move'

By Barb Mensinger, Special Projects Teacher

Eucalyptus School moved to end bullying in October. The schoolwide kickoff for the OLWEUS antibullying program was a huge success, with participation from students, teachers, parents and community partners including the Hawthorne Police Department, a fitness club and a cable company.

Mrs. Ortiz, the dean of students, started the morning with a powerful message to remind everyone that Eucalyptus School is a safe and welcoming school, thanks to everyone who makes the choice to follow the antibullying components found in the Effort, Safety, Responsibility and Respect expectation matrices. Fitness instructors then took the stage and led students in 20-minute dance/exercise routines. An officer from Hawthorne Police brought Gabby the Talking Car and reiterated the message of making good and healthy decisions. The cable company filmed the event and captured the excitement of the day.

It was great fun to see everyone exercising and moving to end bullying!

Kindness Goes a Long Way

HMS kicked-off the Olweus Bullying Prevention Program with a week of events and activities all geared toward being kind. The theme and intent of the week was "Kindness Goes a Long Way."

Each class watched a video titled "Bully-Proof Heart" and designed a door display that answered the question "What touches your heart?" The next day, there was a Kindness Goes a Long Way walk during lunch in which parents, students, teachers and staff walked the track together in support of kindness while the DJ played uplifting and motivational music. Each participant was awarded a bracelet that read "Kindness is Free."

Later that week, students recited and signed an anti-bullying pledge with our school counselor. During the culminating event, "Chalk It Up to Kindness," students were greeted at the school's entrance with chalk art that said, "Be Silly, Be Honest, Be Kind" and "Just Be You."

Everyone benefits when we are all kind to one another.

Quality Family Time

Isn't it nice to get away from all of the technology in our lives and sit down with family members and spend quality time as a family? At Jefferson we make that happen! Jefferson had its annual family board game night. A packed crowd made it through the cold and rainy weather in order to make this night a success. We had over 60 board games, puzzles, and card games for families to sit and have quality time together. All of these educational games helped students practice the many concepts that they have been learning in class, but in fun and exciting environment with low stress and high competition between parents and children. There is a lot of math that goes into playing board games and communication is a very important skill used in these games. So continue to spend family time playing games at home or at school.

Celebrating Hispanic Heritage

On November 15th, Kornblum School honored our Hispanic Heritage event with some great student performances! Children from kindergarten, first grade, second grade, fourth grade, and fifth grade celebrated what they had

musical numbers.

Countries of origin and styles of music were explored, including Shakira from Colombia, music from El Salvador, Cumbia by Selena, and salsa and music from the movie Coco. The grand finale was a fun dance of the Macarena that all of our families were able to join in on.

The students gave a total of four performances, with three during the school day and one in the evening for parents. A special thanks goes to the wonderful parents who decorated our stage for the performance. We are very proud of our Kornblum Cardinal performers!

The students will have another chance to show their talents at our upcoming African-American History Program in February.

Creating a College-Going Culture

The Parent Institute for Quality Education, in association with CSU Dominguez Hills and GEAR UP, recently provided several weeks of parent workshops at PVMS.

These workshops trained and engaged our parents in the following topics: supporting academic achievement of adolescents, connecting academic success and positive self-esteem, overcoming obstacles, motivating teenagers to read, reviewing key concepts, and preparing students to meet the university admissions requirements.

By significantly increasing knowledge of the K-12 and college systems, PIQE enabled our parents to become advocates for student success not just in their homes but also in the community. Thirty-eight parents graduated from the program at PVMS, and a celebration was held in order to recognize them. During this ceremony our parents expressed their appreciation for the partnership, and for the tools and knowledge they gained to help their children go to college and achieve academic success.

Art is Blooming

The Arts Docents program combines two things that we love at Ramona Elementary School: art and parent volunteers! The Arts Docents are parent volunteers who have been trained to work in teams in order to teach art lessons in the classrooms. The program was created as a way to sustain arts education for all students, and everyone benefits.

Children are creating art, classroom teachers are learning new ideas and techniques, and parents are actively engaged in the educational process.

The Arts Docents kicked off the program this fall by providing our Transitional Kindergarten and kindergarten classrooms with an enjoyable and creative art project. The suns that the children created tied into their language arts unit on the needs of plants and animals. The Arts Docents will expand to first grade in January and return to kindergarten with a new lesson in the spring.

Bullying Prevention

By Victor Hatten, Dean of Students

Washington School kicked off the Olweus Bullying Prevention Program during the month of October. Dean of Students Mr. Victor Hatten spoke to the students during their grade-level assemblies about our district's bullying prevention program. The school's anti-bullying rules and definitions were also presented to our staff members and students.

In addition to the program's introduction, students and staff had the opportunity to interact and enjoy a number of school-wide activities. The classroom teachers have also started with their class meetings, which are a part of the program.

Based on school data, our main areas of focus are communication and peer relations, which are also the topic of our discussions during the meetings. Every Friday between 8:45 and 9 a.m. our students have the opportunity to role-play or engage in discussions based on different scenarios. Our Washington Wildcats are excited to be participating in this program.

Daily Attendance Matters!

York Staff closely monitors daily attendance, early pickups and tardies. Illnesses and emergencies do occur, but please give your child a medical, court or parent note for any absences. Students are recognized for perfect monthly, trimester and yearly attendance; mascot Leo the Lion visits the classroom with the month's highest percentage of perfect attendance.

The primary rationale for attendance data is the relationship between student attendance and student achievement. Absence, excused or not, denies students the opportunity to learn.

Teacher effectiveness is the strongest school-related determinant of student success, but chronic student absence reduces even the best teacher's ability to provide learning. Students who attend school regularly generally achieve at higher levels than students who do not.

This relationship between attendance and achievement may appear as early as kindergarten. Recent studies indicate that absenteeism in kindergarten is associated with negative first-grade outcomes like greater absenteeism in subsequent years and lower achievement. This tells us that attendance is an important factor in achievement. We want all our Superstars to have every opportunity available!

Family Science Nights

Zela Davis just completed a three-part Family Science Night series. The events were coordinated by parent volunteers, engineers from an innovative space-travel corporation, The Aerospace Corporation and our STEM intervention teacher, Mrs. Franklin.

Zela Davis partners with Iridescent and Curiosity Machine to present design challenges that each family must complete. During each session, families are presented with a different design challenge that tasks them with creating different items ranging from a space capsule to a robot. The engineers presented the design challenges through the Curiosity Machine website and provided support to the students and families. Design challenges increased in complexity with each event to build prior knowledge and keep families challenged.

In addition to the hands-on engineering challenges, families brought food for a potluck-style dinner. Families ate, worked directly with engineers, and worked with one another in a collaborative atmosphere. Everyone involved had a great time and are looking forward to similar events!

Captivating Narrative

The Three Questions

Based on a story by Leo Tolstoy

"When is the best time to do things? Who is the most important one? What is the right thing to do?"

We all ask ourselves these haunting questions at some point. In this astounding children's book, The Three Questions, Jon J Muth reveals to us the answers to these questions. With what I think can only be a little bit of magic, the author seems to perfectly state not just the answers to these inquiries, but also the meaning of life. At least, in my opinion!

I'd give this book 7 out of 8 trifold shards for its sheer emotional power that somehow still remains logical. It provokes deep thought, even in children. It's the perfect blend of a calm, serene tone, and a captivating narrative. It didn't strike me as the normal children's story — I think absolutely anyone could benefit from it. I'd certainly recommend that you give it a read.

Alana is a student columnist and a self-proclaimed "huge nerd." When she doesn't have a book in her hands, she loves to play video games and write fiction. She rates books on a scale of 1-8 trifold shards with 8 being the highest

Intense

Obsessed by Allison Britz

After a cancer-related nightmare, sophomore Allison prepares for another day: pass class and run track. Her brain, though, is traumatized. Suddenly everyday sights are dangerous - threatening to enlarge the tumor that may or may not be in her brain.

Blue pens. Sidewalk cracks. The color green.

Allison develops rituals. Everywhere she goes, there is a safe number of steps. Her Protector keeps her safe from cancer, and she does as he says. Soon, Allison's grades drop. She pushes away her friends, and fights with her family. She is alone - until she finds the pamphlet in her doctor's office titled OCD. From that point on, it is all about the uphill climb.

Allison Britz's memoir is raw, honest, and touching. A glimpse at the struggle of mental illness, she explains her journey with OCD and her ascent from the dark room that is obsessive-compulsive disorder. Five out of five bookworms.

Lucy is a 7th grade student. When she isn't immersed in a book, she loves musical theater, ballet, and singing. She enjoys stretching her imagination by writing short stories of her own. Lucy will rate the books 1 to 5 bookworms with 5 being the best.

Sibling Rivalry

The Lemonade War

By Jacqueline Davis

The is a book about the difficulties of a brother/sister relationship. The older brother Evan and his younger sister Jessie are complete opposites of each other. The brother is people-smart and the sister is math-smart. They start a competition on who could make the most money selling lemonade after Evan gets mad that Jessie is going to skip a grade and be in the same class with him. He feels that not only his kid sister is too smart for her age, but being in the same class with him she will embarrass him in front of his friends. The battle is on! However, after all this they both end up learning a good lesson about the undeniable value of teamwork. I like this book because it kind of relates to me and my sister. We often disagree with each other, but we always work better together. I give this book 4 out 5 stars.

Richard J. is a 4th grader. Richard likes math, playing sports, physical activities like bike-riding, swimming, diving and running. He is a hard-working student who enjoys reading, seeing and learning new things and spending time with his family and friends.

Truly Inspiring

Heidi by Johanna Spyri

Heidi is a sweet young girl that is taken to live with her sour uncle. While Heidi resides in the Alps, she meets the young shepherd who loves food.

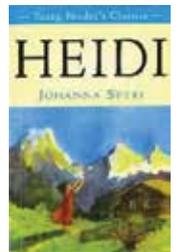

Heidi loves the Swiss Alps but is suddenly sold to a wealthy family in Germany. She is to be friends with Clara, a girl who is paralyzed and is lonely.

On a quest to attempt to see the Alps in a German city, Clara and Heidi escape from the house, landing Heidi in deep trouble. Heidi is sad and attempts to run away. When she is caught and denied permission to return home, Heidi becomes depressed.

When Heidi begins to sleepwalk and go outside at night, the doctor says it is because of her depression. The doctor says that she needs to go home.

Will Heidi be allowed to go home? Or will she find a home in Clara's house?

I would give Heidi 5 stars. I hung onto every word and anticipated every page

Isabella is a 7th grader and just published her first short story in a school anthology of young authors after winning first prize with her work. She rates books on a 5 star scale.

Fantastic to the End!

I just LOVED Restart, by Gordon Karman. It made me laugh and kept me interested with the action.

Boom! Chase wakes up in the hospital. What happened? Where's his mother? He can't remember anything, except a blonde girl with a blue dress. With each day that goes by, Chase meets "new" people and finds out "new" things about him that help bring back the memories of his old life: a cherry bombed piano, a stolen medal of honor, a football star, a cruel bully... Will Chase be able to remember his past? Will he be able to fix it? Or will he remain the rotten kid he was before?

Gordon Karman definitely wrote a great book! I like how the book shows the point of view and opinions from the different characters. I rate this book 4 out of 5 stars.

Bailey is a 7th grader who loves being with her friends and reading. When she isn't doing these things, she's dancing ballet or lyrical.

Sadly they are brought together not for a good reason, someone is trying to release a monster that their ancestors had put in prison. ## Book Review By Katrina

Dark Twist

Vicious by V.E. Schwab is a dark twist on superheroes and super villain origins. The story focuses Eli and Victor, two college friends who couldn't be more different, as they work together to explore and explain EOs or Extra Ordinary people. People with unusual abilities like super strength or metal manipulation. But when Victor proposes they try to make themselves extra Ordinary too, their dreams, futures and very lives spiral out of control. Now flipping between ten years ago and now, Eli and Victor must finally confront each other and settle the score once and for all. Filled with betrayal, murder and a glass of chocolate milk, this book will make you question the fine and often blurred line of heroism and villainy. Schwab is a diabolical genius of a writer with a gift for storytelling and anyone who loves heroes, villains and superpowers will adore this book. # Common Sense Media

Media Tips for Parents

By Caroline Knorr

Choose the good stuff (and not too much!). When your kids ask to see, play, or download something, don't just take their word for it -- check up on it. A lot of the age recommendations on media products are the creators' best guess and aren't necessarily a match for your child's age and developmental stage. Read product reviews from independent sources (like Common Sense Media). Say no if you're not comfortable with it. And when you approve something, help your kids enjoy it along with their other activities.

Don't use screens right before bed, and keep them out of the bedroom overnight. Kids really need their sleep. Screens in the bedroom -- especially in the hour before bedtime -- interfere with the entire process of winding down, preparing for rest, and waking up refreshed and ready to tackle the day. If you're unable to make the bedroom a screen-free zone (which is optimal but not always possible), keep TVs off for at least an hour before bedtime and set tablets or phones to night mode, turn off any notifications, and/or consider using Guided Access or another device setting to keep phones/tablets locked on a music or an alarm clock app.

Turn off the TV if no one is watching it. A lot of parents of young kids keep the TV on for company. But so-called background TV has been shown to get in the way of parents talking and interacting with their kids -- which are key to helping kids learn language and communication. Background TV can also expose kids to age-inappropriate content. Seek out other forms of entertainment that you can listen to with your kid, such as music, kids' podcasts, and audiobooks.

Make time for enjoying media with your kids, especially reading. Reading to your kid is one of the best things you can do -- period. It's great for bonding, but it also sets the stage for learning. While it's nice to have a little library of books at home, you can read whatever is available and it'll be good for them. Product labels, signs, packaging copy -- anything with words is fine. If you're raising your kid in a place where you don't completely know the language, feel free to read books or articles to them in your native tongue. Or just make up stories -- it's the rhythm, sounds, and communication that are important for kids to hear.

Practice what you preach. Remember, your kids are watching you. When your kids are little, create a family media plan to help you balance media and tech (theirs and yours) with all of the other things that are important to you. This isn't just for them; it's for you, too. Schedule in downtime, chores, homework, outdoor fun, reading, meals, etc. And then figure out how much extra is available for TV shows, games, apps and other media activities. Don't worry about counting up daily screen time minutes -- just aim for a balance throughout the week. Try to carve out times and locations that are "screen-free zones." Hold yourself to them. Kids learn more from what we do than what we say, so make sure you're role-modeling the right habits.
